Teaching

Teaching outside the university:

Teaching English as a Second Language – Sapporo, Japan, one year
Elderhostel program teaching senior citizens – Iowa, two summers
Upward Bound program, teaching disadvantaged high school students,
Iowa, two summers
Catholic Relief Services training, giving seminars updating relief workers on best practices in peacebuilding – Notre Dame, three summers

Teaching students in the field:

Founder and Director of ethnographic field school in Friesland, the Netherlands, a summer program for undergraduate anthropology and linguistics students, 1987-90. Located in Eastermar (Oostermeer), the focus was on linguistic nationalism and the field school was accredited by Central University of Iowa. Students studied ethnographic methods, Dutch/Frisian, linguistics, and conducted independent research.

Mentored Notre Dame students in field research with diasporan Sikhs in Surrey, British Columbia, summer 2006. Several students continued this work in Sante Fe, London, and Punjab and have gone on to co-author articles on their work.

Author of education materials:

Author of ancillary text materials for top-selling introductory textbook in anthropology, including instructor's manuals, test banks, study guides, and overhead transparency sets, published by Harcourt Brace 1994- 2001. Integrated student assistants into every step of production of these materials, as acknowledged in publications.

Author of internet guide to anthropology resources for students, published by Thomson Educational Publishers, 2000- 2003.

Mentoring and advising:

Closely mentored Stacy Brady through fieldwork in four North American cities as she studied Sikh women for a senior thesis at the University of Maine; we co-authored a book together as a result (The Guru's Gift) focusing not only on Sikh women but on pedagogical issues.

Co-authored with two other University of Maine students: Tony King and Geoff Wingard, who worked with me on military history and produced articles for a military history encyclopedia.

Advised Willow Wetherall through two summers of field research in Cyprus and a senior thesis at the University of Maine; then on through her M.A. in Peace Studies at Notre Dame where she did fieldwork on women in Cuba.

Currently mentoring Notre Dame graduate Chris Giamo through fieldwork in London and San Francisco with expatriate Sikhs and co-authorship a book.

K-12 Education:

Participant in Teachers as Scholars program, U.S. Institute of Peace, 2005. Taught seminar for K-12 teachers on. "Humanizing the Other in an Age of Terror" resulting in K-12 curriculum with DVD, distributed nationally.

Undergraduate courses taught:

Consultant to agencies and departments of the U.S., Canadian and British governments on asylum, terrorism and security matters relevant to South Asia.

Expert witness in legal cases in the United States, Canada and the United Kingdom relating to South Asia.

Continuing education: Writing Across the Curriculum Humanities Workshop (month long), Ames, Iowa; intensive summer course on Refugee Studies at York University, Toronto (certificate awarded); intensive summer seminar on Catholic Intellectual Tradition at Notre Dame, summer course on Teaching Film Across the Humanities (Notre Dame), year-long faculty seminar on Feminist Theology and the Catholic Intellectual Tradition (Notre Dame).

Major institutional and administrative service (Notre Dame):

Director of Undergraduate Studies, Joan B. Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies; 2001-03. During my tenure the Institute developed the Supplementary Major in Peace Studies.

Director of Graduate Studies, Joan B. Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies, 2003-05. During my tenure the Institute developed the two-year M.A. program in International Peace Studies, expanding the curriculum through five paths of academic concentration, six-month overseas internships, and a Master's seminar and project. This program won recognition through a "Blessed Are The Peacemakers" Award from Catholic Theological Union in 2008.
