

Rome, September 26, 2007

Dear Professors,

The 21th Century will be the century of the cognitive sciences.

These developments will be fundamental for understanding humans as well as be the source of many dangers for humanity.

It is in the interest of an Academy, especially Catholic, to pay highest attention to this field.

I think that the Notre Dame University is in the best position for being of great help for bringing new understanding to the worldwide Catholic culture.

With warmest regards,

Gennaro Auletta

Scientific Vice-Coordinator of the STOQ Project
Scientific Director of the Specialization "Science and Philosophy"