

Note from the Editors:

Now in its fifth year, the Journal of Undergraduate Research is a peer-reviewed scholarly publication that collects, reviews, and distributes outstanding academic research and writing produced by undergraduates in the College of Arts and Letters. The primary goal of the Journal is to provide an outlet beyond the classroom for outstanding undergraduate work. We believe that the quality of research among Arts and Letters students is deserving of a wide audience; consequentially, the Journal endeavors to reveal that work, and therefore promote further achievement in undergraduate research and writing.

The Journal's twenty-two member editorial board, comprising a diverse array of students from the College, has reviewed seventy papers from nearly every department in Arts and Letters. The four that are published here, and the three more that appear in the online edition of the Journal, particularly highlight the original and outstanding research completed in the College. For the editors, the papers selected demonstrate the determined pursuit of knowledge that is at the core of a liberal arts education. It is our hope that the Journal readership has a similar response.